

What's the deal with split infinitives?

Here's a fun fact:

In Latin, it's impossible to split infinitives because infinitives are always one word (like “nager” in French or “nadar in Spanish). Way back in the day, when people in power were standardizing English, they decided that it should be like Latin and not split infinitives, even though English technically can while Latin technically can't.

